TRANS NOTE

This is going to be somewhat confusing and I totally should have mentioned it a few chapters ago, but Luna's real name is spelled Runa. She has a traditional Japanese name, which, to those in the know, contains no L, however she normally goes by the western pronunciation, Luna - possibly because she likes the moon? Who knows, who cares.

This is entirely a personal interpretation of the original, and it deals with romanizing pronunciation, which is actually even now still up for debate between dusty old Japanese language scholars, so I'm sure there are people out there that disagree with me. But that's all there is to it - disagreement, as neither party is correct or incorrect, so I'd thank anyone with arguments about it to not bother me... I get all defensive about stuff like this. Anyway, when the name is spelled in Kanji, I'm going to try to remember to write it Runa, and when it's not, it'll be Luna... it doesn't really come up much, but you should probably be aware.
